Iron Ore Tests Are Found Favorable

The results of iron ore tests in Crenshaw and Barbour counties are favorable, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Mobile, where Geologist Philip E. Lamoreaux said tests "much more encouraging than expected."

"There is a very good possibility that this ore may extend all the way from the Chattahoochee to the Gulf of Mexico," he said.

One vein near Layfers was found to be more than 10 feet thick.

The ore is limonite, a brown iron ore. It differs from the red hematite ore found in the Birmingham area. The deposits have been known to exist for more than a century but were of limited commercial value until recent development of the electrolytic ore furnace, along with huge earth-moving equipment to make strip mining economical, the A. P. said.

A NEW SIDELIGHT ON KENNEDY

The latest insight into the true character of John Fitzgerald Kennedy is contained in a series of articles published in a daily newspaper Sunday supplement in which he names his choices of the six "bravest" Presidents of the United States.

This is a new approach in judgment of the men who have been chosen as heads of state in this great land of ours.

The most outstanding survey was made back in 1948 by Arthur M. Schlesinger, Sr., Harvard professor and father of the present President's adviser by the same name. Prof. Schlesinger asked 55 college history professors and other historical authorities to name their choices of American presidents under the heading of (1) great; (2) near great; (3) average; (4) below average, and (5) failures.

The results were as follows: (1) great: Lincoln, Washington, F. D. Roosevelt, Wilson, Jefferson and Jackson; (2) near great: Theodore Roosevelt, Cleveland, John Adams, and James Knox Polk; (3) average: John Quincy Adams, Monroe, Hayes, Madison, Van Buren, Taft, Arthur, McKinley, Johnson, Hoover, and Ben Harrison; (4) below average: Tyler, Coolidge, Fillmore, Taylor, Buchanan, and Pierce; (5) failures: Grant and Harding.

Note the difference in approach of the present President in choosing, not the greatest, but the six "bravest": Washington, Lincoln, Theodore Roosevelt, Arthur, John Quincy Adams and Johnson.

Note that his choices were three men whom almost any third-grade grammar school student would select as "great" or "near great" but his other three were men whom many college students hardly remember as Presidents. One of these three was the only President ever to face impeachment charges voted by the House followed by trial before the U. S. Senate which he survived by only one vote.

It would be interesting to see if a qualified psychologist would agree that Kennedy's reasons for selecting John Quincy Adams, Johnson and Arthur denote a feeling of persecution and a desire for martyrdom. Speaking strictly as a layman without any pretense of being a psychologist, but with a half-century in observing human behavior, it seems that Kennedy finds an inner satisfaction in a feeling of persecution.

This stands out particularly in his selection of John Quincy Adams. Adams was the man who became a one-term President after Andrew Jackson had received a plurality of the popular vote but was kept out of the White House after his enemies "ganged up" to throw the election into the House of Representatives.

Jackson bravely came back four years later to poll such a high popular vote that even a coalition of his enemies could not defeat him, and served two terms.

To choose John Quincy Adams over Jackson in any category denotes a peculiar line of thinking, even when judging them on the basis of "bravery." Jackson, who fought a far more expert duelist to vindicate the honor of his wife; Jackson, who stood with an army of rough frontiersmen at New Orleans to repel a larger trained army of British; Jackson, who never flinched in the face of a Presidential campaign when, not only the name of his wife, but his mother was dragged through the mire!

John Quincy Adams, Johnson and Arthur!

Yes, there was a president named Arthur. Fifty-five authorities on American history classified him as "average."

It would be interesting to see if, in the year 2,000 A.D. Kennedy is listed as the country's third "failure" along with Grant and Harding.

21 YEARS AGO— FROM OUR EARLY FILES...

HOW MANY CANDLES?

Do you count the candles on your birthday cake? Why bother? Once you're sweet sixteen, it doesn't matter how many candles you're entitled to. What counts is what you're doing with those years.

The years that are past have burned themselves out. Perhaps they have been all you've wanted them to be—but, if you're like most of us, maybe you could have made them a little better.

One of God's greatest gifts is the marvelous fact that it's never too late to begin again.

Birthdays remind us of the passing of time, of a new life. Celebrate your birthday by giving. Give something of yourself, by going to your church and taking part in its activities, especially those that help others. Next year, the added candle on your cake will burn with a special brightness!

Midget Races Will Be Held Sat. Night After 2-Week Rest

Elba Micro Midget Races will resume in Elba Saturday night at 8:15 after a two-week rest period. Races were held in Elba two weeks ago with Donnan on the visiting list but at the last minute, the appointment was cancelled.

The races proceeded as scheduled with the Elba team in competition with each other. With a grudge race added in with the other events, it was an exciting evening for all who attended.

This Saturday night something new will be added, as a powder puff race is on tap and also for all those hot-rod mechanics who have been keeping up these cars will get a chance to use their driving skill. In addition there will be five feature races starting off with the slow car heat race, followed by a fast car heat race, the Australian Pursuit, the Consolidation race and the big one with all the cars on the track to finish it off.

Official timekeepers and judges will be on hand as this will be a trophy race with five place winners.

Carol Marier, president of the Elba Club, said they were making plans to go to Panama City, Fla., for a race and from there he hopes the Panama City club will return the visit.
